Children's Aid Foundation Gala

Nov. 26, Metro Toronto Convention Centre. Piano Piano chef Victor Barry cooked up a feast for 775 guests at the foundation's elegant fundraiser before the Tenors broke into a surprise (and, thankfully, controversy-free) performance of "Hallelujah." The highlight: a tender speech and aerial silk performance by Anna Amy Ho, a crisis counsellor who leaned on Children's Aid after her family died when she was 13. The night raised $1.9 million.

Bodyguards Premiere

Dec. 2, Hot Docs. Freshman film producer Jeremy Bieber bro-manced VIPs on the red carpet before the Concierge Club screened his high-octane doc about megastars and their muscle. Anton Kalaydjian (guard to J.B. Jr.) did the heavy lifting in a post-screening panel, while Jeremy was conspicuously absent. Justin made a cameo in the film but ditched plans to attend the premiere. Like father, like son.

Suzanne Rogers Fashion Institute Reception

Nov. 28, Ryerson. Ryerson, already home to a Joe Fresh fashion incubator, boosted its sartorial bona fides when the city's style elite clinked champagne flutes to launch a new fashion-design fellowship. A $1-million gift from the Edward and Suzanne Rogers Foundation will fund the program—and put the family name on yet another slice of the school.
