

The Suzanne Rogers Fashion Institute announces Fellowship Selection Committee

The Suzanne Rogers Fashion Institute (SRFI) is pleased to announce the Selection Committee tasked to choose the inaugural cohort who will be joining the institute's dynamic fellowship program.

Bringing years of Canadian and international fashion industry experience and unique perspectives on the business of fashion, luxury retail and design education, the Selection Committee includes Marie Saint Pierre, renowned Canadian luxury designer; Nicholas Mellamphy, fashion retail expert; Wayne Clark, School of Fashion Distinguished designer-in-residence; P.Y. Chau, fashion design educator; and Robert Ott, Associate Professor, School of Fashion, and Director, The Suzanne Rogers Fashion Institute.

Current Ryerson fashion design students and recent alumni will submit their applications by April 28, 2017. The committee will make the selection based on a multi-phased application process, which includes a portfolio submission, physical installation and an interview with each short-listed applicant. The Suzanne Rogers Fashion Institute fellows will be announced summer 2017.
